accomplishments

Peoples Hearing

In 2002, overflow crowds filled the 500-seat Los Angeles Theater Center at the People's Hearing on Redevelopment, where the Share the Wealth platform was presented to public officials.

Redevelopment

In 2003, a lawsuit filed by Share the Wealth partners helped stop the Central City redevelopment plan -- a plan that would have imposed too much hardship and delivered too little benefit to low-income people who live downtown.

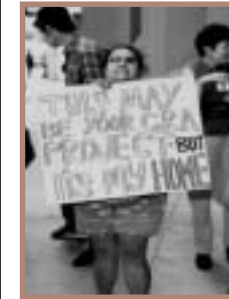

28-Day Shuffle

Many downtown residential hotels force tenants to move every 28 days in order to circumvent rent control and tenants rights laws. In 2003, we stopped the 28-day shuffle in two major downtown hotels through an unfair business practice lawsuit and by filing over 200 complaints with the Los Angeles Housing Department. Since then, other residential hotels downtown have been put on notice to stop this practice through a letter from the City Attorney's office.

$hare the Wealth

The $hare the Wealth campaign addresses the collision course that redevelopment and gentrification have set in motion in downtown Los Angeles.

Building on the
relationships between
community organizers,
low-wage workers,
homeless people,
and racial justice
advocates,
our campaign fights
for the rights of African-Americans,
Latinos,
and all poor people to:

prevent displacement;
protect the civil rights of homeless people
and tenants;
promote affordable housing and
living wage jobs;
and establish new policies that secure our right to benefit from public investment in our community.
